 There may be some nicer and cooler
 places to enjoy a plate of delicious ice cream than Chas. June's pavilion, but they are not to be found in this neighborhood.

SOME SUMMER PROBLEMS.
 I'd like to know a lot of things I'll never understand;
 No cyclopedias can explain; a hundred I have examined.
 I care not now for problems that have vexed
 the world for aye;
 All mine in their essential points are purely of today.
 Now first of all I'd like to know why Hannel
 trousered men
 Do wear them at the ankles turned, nor turn them down again?
 Are they too long to wear, perchance, the way
 that they were made?
 Or is it that the wearers feel that they may have to wade?
 And why is it that lovely maids, who never sneer at all,
 When they do happen to attend a tourney of a
 ball,
 Affect forgetties, despite the fact their eyes
 are so sharp?
 And, looking through them, seem transformed
 to snobs of ancient line?
 Again, I'd know why in July, and all through August, too,
 Young men and maidens can do things that no
 one else may do?
 Why is it that they are engaged from July until fall,
 Yet in the winter seem to know each other not at all?
 And why do folks in search of rest go from a restful home,
 And like a band of gypsies round about the country roam?
 I want to know these things so much that if you'll tell me I'll Reward you when we meet with my most fascinating smile.
 —Harper's Bazar.

Is a Bad Way.
 Willis—I'd hate to be as hard up as Broker seems to be.
 Wallace—What leads you to think he is
 and up?
 Willis—Why, he's been to see me 10 times
 this week to get that five I borrowed from him six months ago.—Tit-Bits.

Solitary Bliss.
 First Little Girl—We went to the picnic,
 and you wasn't even invited.
 Second Little Girl—No, but mamma gave me a whole lot of money to buy candy and cake and ice cream and lemonade for myself, and I'll bet I was sicker'n you were.—
 Good News.

The Brass Band.
 She—That band has considerable cheek,
 playing under our window.
 He—Yes. It's a brass band, you know.—
 Yankee Blade.
